SECURITY
To gain admission, adult visitors will be asked to produce personal identification such as a photo ID driving licence. Fulwood Barracks has been an important military establishment since 1848 and remains so today. Security is always important, but at times there may be a need for increased vigilance. This may result in some restrictions on visitors or even alterations to opening times.

REGIMENTAL SHOP
The Regimental Shop is normally open when the museum is open. See www.dukeoflancastersregimentshop.com. This is the one stop shop for The Duke of Lancaster’s Regiment. Our catalogue includes everything from uniform items to leisurewear; books to bullets and fine bone china.
Telephone: 01772 260591

Napoleonic Eagle captured at Salamanca 1812
At the Lancashire Infantry Museum you can explore the fascinating story of the Lancashire soldier in peace and war. Come and see how the Lancashire Lad lived, worked and fought throughout the world from the founding of the Regiment by William of Orange in 1689 to the present day.

The extensive galleries, collections and archives illustrate the compelling story of some of Lancashire’s famous regiments including:

- The East Lancashire Regiment
- The South Lancashire Regiment (PWV)
- The Loyal North Lancashire Regiment
- The Lancashire Regiment (PWV)
- The Queen’s Lancashire Regiment
- The Duke of Lancaster’s Regiment
- as well as the Militia, Rifle Volunteers, Home Guard, Territorials and Cadets.

We offer guided tours of the museum, prior booked and for a fee. Tours can be tailored for different ages and group interests.

Family friendly with dress-up uniforms and special trails for youngsters.

Education sessions for all Key Stage groups available. Advance booking and small fee required.

Wish to trace a relative who served in one of our Regiments? For a donation our researchers may be able to help.

Archives and reserve collections available by appointment.

For more details and how to book please see our website. The Museum is a registered charity. We welcome donations towards the upkeep of the collections.
